Declaration under the Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1931

16 of 1931.

35

It is hereby declared that it is expedient in the public interest that the provisions of clause 4 of this Bill shall have immediate effect under the Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1931.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of this short Bill is to continue the existing tax structure for the financial year 1967-68, subject to certain modifications in relation to income-tax, and also to continue for that financial year, the existing rates at which annuity deposits are required to be made under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

2. Clause 2 continues the existing rates of income-tax and surcharges thereon.

In view of the devaluation of the rupee with effect from June 6, 1966 and the decision of the Government announced at that time that the export promotion schemes and incentives in force prior to that date would not continue in operation from that date, the Bill seeks to provide that the existing rebates of income-tax in relation to exports will be available only with reference to exports made up to June 5, 1966. Similarly, the Bill also seeks to provide that in the case of a manufacturer of specified commodities who has sold such commodities to an exporter in India, the existing provision for tax rebate will be applicable only in respect of such sales made up to June 5, 1966.

At present, domestic companies of certain categories are chargeable to an additional amount of income-tax with reference to distributions of dividends by them on their paid-up equity capital in excess of 10 per cent. of such capital. Such additional income-tax is calculated at the rate of $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on so much of their total income (exclusive of any capital gains relating to 'long-term' capital assets, which are chargeable to tax at special rates specified in the Income-tax Act, 1961) as does not exceed the relevant amount of distributions referred to above. The provision for the levy of such additional income-tax is proposed to be continued. In conformity with the scheme underlying this provision, it is sought to provide that where a company could not be charged to such additional income-tax in respect of the assessment year 1966-67 with reference to any part of the relevant amount of distributions of equity dividends (as computed in accordance with the Finance Act, 1966) due to the circumstance that such amount exceeded the total income of the company for that assessment year, such excess will also be taken into account in levying the additional income-tax for the assessment year 1967-68.

3. Clause 3 seeks to continue the existing rates of annuity deposits in respect of the assessment year 1967-68 as also for the annuity deposits to be made during the financial year 1967-68 in relation to the income assessable for the assessment year 1968-69.

4. Clause 4 seeks to maintain for another year the status quo in relation to the income assessable for the assessment year 1968-69. and Trade.

5. Clause 5, like section 50 of the Finance Act, 1966, provides that salt shall be duty free for another year.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

As this Bill seeks to continue the existing tax structure for the financial year 1967-68 subject to certain modifications in relation to income-tax and also to continue for that financial year the existing rates at which annuity deposits are required to be made under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961, the Bill if enacted and brought into operation would not involve any additional expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 2 of the Bill which inter alia applies section 2(5)(d) of the Finance Act, 1966 in relation to income-tax for the assessment year commencing on the 1st day of April, 1967, empowers the Central Board of Direct Taxes to make rules for the purpose of computing the amount of any profits and gains derived by an assessee from the export of any goods or merchandise out of India in respect of which he may claim deduction of income-tax under section 2(5)(a)(i) of the Finance Act, 1966 as applied by the said clause 2. The matter in respect of which rules may be made is one of procedure and detail. Therefore, the delegation of legislative power is of a normal character.

Customs) Amendment Ordinance, 1966, is hereby repealed. and saving.

15 (2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the principal Act as amended by the said Ordinance shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the principal Act as amended by this Act as if this Act had come into force on the 15th day of December, 1966.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Mineral Products (Additional Duties of Excise and Customs) Act, 1958 was enacted for the purpose of levying and collecting additional duties of excise and customs on certain mineral oils. The Act provides for ceiling rates within which effective rates are fixed by notification. As a result of devaluation, the landed price in terms of rupees of imported products naturally increased to the extent of devaluation, and by virtue of the Import Price Parity Agreement with foreign refinery companies they became entitled to a corresponding increase in their selling prices of these products. In fact, however, the cost to these refineries increased only in respect of the imported components of the products such as crude oil, processing chemicals, etc., which constituted only a proportion of the total cost. There was, therefore, no reason to allow the refineries price increase to the full extent of the increase in the rupee landed cost of the products as a result of devaluation. To mop up this difference it became necessary to enhance the rates of non-recoverable additional excise duties, and this was possible only if the ceiling rates provided in the Act were raised. The Mineral Products (Additional Duties of Excise and Customs) Amendment Ordinance, 1966 (12 of 1966), was accordingly promulgated on the 15th December, 1966 to amend the Mineral Products (Additional Duties of Excise and Customs) Act, 1958.

2. The Bill seeks to replace the Mineral Products (Additional Duties of Excise and Customs) Amendment Ordinance, 1966.
